Comment: I checked the M⁶ MSS from the XI century (over 80) and to my surprise no two of them had an identical mosaic of variants. No matter what contrastive set one uses as a basis (e.g. βαθεως X βαθεος), as soon as you look down the roster of other variants the MSS wander back and forth, producing a bewildering array of variation, shifting alliances, or whatever. If all the centuries are checked, there will presumably be a few small groups wherein the member MSS share identical mosaics, but no single definitive profile for M⁶ will emerge (in contrast to M⁷). If there is no single profile, then there is no objective way to define / establish / re-construct an archetype for M⁶. Without a definable archetype, M⁶ is not a viable candidate for the original form of the Text. However, the ten variants marked by  do distinguish M⁶ from both M⁵ and M⁷, forming its ‘backbone’. But two of the ten, plus another fourteen, have internal variation (besides a variety of further variation not recorded in this list). The individual MSS meander around the plethora of internal (within the group) variation in a bewildering manner, all of which diminishes the credibility of the group. I take it that M⁶ reflects Alexandrian influence.
